

Title: RTO's Guide to Split Pushing and Wave Management. Ever wonder why High Elo players get such high CS?

Score:

--- POST CONTENT ---

Hi guys!

This is probably the most important thing that I have ever posted on this sub and is the reason why I have been able to get such ridiculous CS numbers consistently for the last few seasons.

In these videos, I really break down what is split pushing, how to do it properly and how to properly control waves. Understanding how to do it correctly will make you a monster in the mid to late game no matter what champ you are playing.

2 part video:

Split Pushing and Wave Management Guide

Split Pushing Game Breakdown

This is all apart of my Ultimate Guide to Renekton Series

[Entire

Playlist](<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NBKMxr-hbDs&list=PL0eXyv0p3clxMab0x0UVh1GdySr5SQjoV>)

Enjoy and as always, I am always looking to improve my content and love feedback from you guys!

--- TOP COMMENTS ---

[Comment 1 | Score: 90]

Will watch later.. seems like there aren't nearly enough videos regarding this, thx for making it

[Comment 2 | Score: 38]

Good stuff. I've always had some issues with wave management outside of laning phase, but I think I can handle remembering "is it a small wave? kill."

Let me make sure I 100% understand though: If a cannon wave meets a cannon wave, and it's on the enemy's side of the map, it will build and slowpush. So by the same rule of thumb, if a cannon vs cannon wave is on YOUR side of the map, you should kill that unless you want a slowpush into the enemy team. Which really would only be advantageous if you want to group and don't have TP.

Appreciate any corrections and comments on this, RTO. Keep up the good work.

[Comment 3 | Score: 61]

u/RTO_LOL The fact that you show how having the wave bounce gives you tempo to go elsewhere on the map, is insanely powerful. Simple explanation but so so effective, heavily upvoted you!

[Comment 4 | Score: 31]

> Ever wonder why High Elo players get such high CS?

they're really good at last hitting

/s

[Comment 5 | Score: 15]

Thanks for the guide! I've been watching your stream and have picked up renek again after a long time. I really enjoy how you always seem to be positive and fun to interact with on stream. Good luck on the grind!