

Title: Wave managing with Urgot

Score:

--- POST CONTENT ---

Hey does anyone have tips to help me manage waves easier as urgot? Last hitting on the champ is a real pain because of the passive. I'm trying to just last hit waves and let them crash into me but the passive just damages the wave way too much. I know in early levels the passive has a long cd, but even then working around it is a real hassle.

--- TOP COMMENTS ---

[Comment 1 | Score: 201]

Hit the minions always at the same angle so you just use 1 shot of your passive

[Comment 2 | Score: 61]

[removed]

[Comment 3 | Score: 253]

[removed]

[Comment 4 | Score: 76]

Try to do cheater recall or just stack the big wave to protect yourself from ganks. If enemy jungler comes, you have pretty decent chances of 1v2 with large amount minions if u fight inside the wave

[Comment 5 | Score: 25]

Do your best to not let waves crash into your turret with your front 2 or 3 passives up. That's the super killer when it comes to cs. You actually have to play pretty passive in lane as urgot post level

2, so I just try and proc my passive on the enemy laner as poke leading up to level 6 since the splash damage doesn't really affect csing too much