

Title: Top lane wave management - what to do if someone is perma-pushing?

Score:

--- POST CONTENT ---

I play Akshan/Camille top. Recently I've been trying to play around waves more (how you "should" play lane.)

Essentially, I will always slow push a wave and try to crash large wave under tower. I will trade when pushing, and avoid trades when the wave is pushing back. If I can, I will try to freeze..

Unfortunatly, especially as Akshan I run into the issue that some opponents like Sion, Mordekaiser and many others can counter this by just constantly hitting the wave so it's always pushed into my tower. My slow pushes are completely ruined and freezes are impossible when they can clear the wave in two abilities.

What should I do with the wave if my opponent is constantly clearing it?

Poke them while they are shoving, then try to catch the wave and freeze it at your tower. They will force you back, you land some more poke when they step up, and eventually they have to back off and give you the freeze.

With Akshan, you can freeze the wave easily in front of your tower and zone them out of the wave for a pretty long time. Akshan is ranged, so you can wait on the bush on their side of the lane before the 1st wave makes it to lane, then zone them out of the first 3 minions, this will give you an exp lead, after that you use your lvl lead to force them back to tower, reset the wave, and next time they try to push, you set up the freeze so you can keep zoning them out without being overextended.

If they are hitting wave they aren't hitting you, so hard trade to force them off the wave.

Ranged champs don't have perma shove just because they're ranged and can hit the wave, it's also because when you hit an enemy champ the minions agro u and not ur wave creating a window where ur wave is pushing and there's isn't, u don't want to hold minion agro forever and get chunked but the brief windows they agro u then agro off will push the wave because your minions we're hitting their minions. So basically no matter what u do wether it be hitting champs or minions if ur hitting something ur pushing, so just hit something, if ur not using ur ranged advantage to be doing that ur not doing ranged champs right

If they use ability in the wave just kill them? And if they want to push as melee vs range auto them then kill them?
