

Title: What champion requires the most wave-management?

Score:

--- POST CONTENT ---

I have a theory that champs who are forced to manage their waves optimally make good junglers. What champ do you think teaches the most about wave management? When you see an autofill jg, what info can you gain when looking at their main champs? I personally felt that I enjoy jg because of my experience as a top main, as I learned a lot about medium/long term macro and timing.

--- TOP COMMENTS ---

[Comment 1 | Score: 35]

orianna, twisted fate stuff like that

[Comment 2 | Score: 152]

TF.

By far.

champ is almost entirely management.

management to roam, management to not lose lane, management to apply pressure etc.

but not a jungler at all.

Pick tf forced me to really start to understand the wave, because TF is neither good in lane or bad. His success is almost entirely dependent on the person playing. Compare that to Brand, where any idiot can land a combo and chunk the laner, really not hard, you out damage almost any mid.

[Comment 3 | Score: 83]

Nasus. If you have zero wave management you lose lane a lot.

[Comment 4 | Score: 23]

Roaming champs the most like tf asol and taliyah. Then control mages like ori viktor and azir and then probably all top laners

[Comment 5 | Score: 9]

Any immobile champ imho. If you die due to bad lane state then lanes over gg